

Fines Review Bibliography

American Library Association. “Economic Barriers to Information Access: an Interpretation of the Library Bill of Rights”. Adopted June 30, 1993 by the ALA Council. www.ala.org.

Barnes, Steve. “The Importance of Accessible Community Recreation Services.” [Policy Brief], Wellesley Institute, 2011.

Clutterbuck, Peter and Rob Howarth. “Toronto’s Quiet Crisis the Case for Social and Community Infrastructure Investment”. Centre for Urban and Community Studies, November 2002.

Khosla, Punam. “If Low Income Women of Colour Counted in Toronto”. The Community Social Planning Council of Toronto, 2003.

Oder, Norman. “Philadelphia Backs off Fine Policy”, Library Journal, February 15, 2009.

Profile of Low Income in the City of Toronto. Toronto Social Development, Finance and Administration. 2011.

Schnoll, Jenny. Reducing Barriers to Public Library Service for Low-Income Families. <http://www.accessola.com/accessonline/onlineonly/archives/winter2012/barriers.php>

Shlay, Anne B., et al. Barriers to subsidies: why low-income families do not use child care subsidies. Social Science Research, Vol. 33 Issue 1, March 2004. Pp 134-157.

Toronto Social Development, Finance and Administration. Profile of Low Income in the City of Toronto. 2011.

Working Together Project. Community-Led Libraries Toolkit. Vancouver, 2008.